

GRADUATE RETURNING STUDENTS

Graduate returning applicants are degree-seeking students who are reenrolling to complete a previously unfinished graduate degree at Colorado State University Pueblo. A graduate returning student must reapply to the SAME unfinished graduate degree program, and must be in good standing and eligible to return to the program.

Applicants Must Submit:

1. An online Colorado State University Pueblo application
2. Official transcripts from all institutions of higher learning attended after Colorado State University Pueblo enrollment (see Transcript Requirements below).
3. A personal statement.
4. Specific program requirements. See individual program pages in this Catalog for additional program requirements.

Transcript Requirements

All graduate students are required to provide official transcripts* from every institution of higher learning attended. This requirement includes transcripts from unaccredited colleges or universities, transcripts for non-transferable coursework and transcripts with incomplete or withdrawn grades. The Office of Admissions requires transcripts from any undisclosed institutions that appear on any transcripts provided. Graduate students with in-progress grades must provide official final transcripts after course completion. Transcripts are only considered official if issued directly to Colorado State University Pueblo by an institution of higher learning or the custodian of the records for a closed institution.

*For students with non-U.S. transcripts: All international documentation must be translated, certified, and authenticated through an approved credentialing agency. For further information regarding this process, refer to the International Students Admission Requirements (<https://www.csupueblo.edu/admissions/prospective-students/international-students/admissions-requirements/graduate-students.html>) section of the catalog.
